USA – Delays at APM Terminal (New York)

January 24, 2019

Dear Customer,

We are currently experiencing higher dwells for containers being transferred to the rail (import and export). This is primarily the result of a surge in imports and labor shortages in the Port of NYNJ at the end of 2018. Hapag-Lloyd is working together with Millennium Rail (the on dock rail facility), our rail providers and APM to clear a back log of containers at the port. We expect the situation to return to normal with four to six weeks.

Meanwhile our customers may experience longer than normal delivery times for containers moving to inland destinations.

For further information, please contact your local Hapag-Lloyd office.

Kind regards,

Hapag-Lloyd AG.
